Mr. Murdoch's Readings.

That we were present at Mr. Murdoch's Readings last evening had a first class, and those who did not avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this accomplished oratorist have occasion to regret it. High as the public reputation of Mr. Murdoch is as a reader, he more than sustained it last evening.

There is nothing lacking for effective

A LETTER TO "AMATEUR."

Editor Morning Herald:

In reply to your communication which appeared in your paper, I have received the following letter, which I hand you for publication. We should like very much to see Mr. Lewis' place proposed here, but he has mistaken the tenure of my letter.

It was not "an object for which to play" that I wished to be proposed, it was some plan for the organization of an association.

There are benevolent objects enough here to play for, and should an organization of the kind proposed be effected, it would probably be composed of that class of our young people who would not care to contribute to individual aggrandizement.

My view of the matter is to form an association for the mutual entertainment of its members, and to encourage domestic services to some worthy benevolent object, such as one, for instance, as the Home

Relief. There is no post of the Grand Army here, but there are a number of members here who belong to posts in other cities. The play referred to in the letter is entitled, "The Old Flag; or, the Spy of Newbern."

UNION CITY, Pa., Dec. 15, 1871.

AMATEUR—DEAR SIR: I see by your communication in this morning's HERALD you express a desire to organize a dramatic association in your city, and desire an object shall be proposed for which to play. If there is a Post of the Grand Army of the Republic in Titusville, I should like very much to come down and bring out my piece for them, which would afford a good opportunity for establishing a noble character and the same time secure a worthy institution, or I will come down and play for any other object you may desire.

Yours, etc., E. A. LEWIS

AMATEUR THEATRICALS—FROM AN OLD

SOAP CHEWER

Editor Morning Herald:

I am an old prosaic actor of the Mc-Kean Buchanan school, and though I have been for some years engaged in the oil business, and have not been in touch with my head, which is located over my left and was left there several years ago by the possessor, during a skiffing in an oyster saloon, yet I can gum it now with all the fervor of youth, and chew up a bar of Babbit's best laundry soap in three minutes by a stage clock.

I have read with much interest the article of "Amateur" in the letter column of your paper, and believe that you have in your city that enough to make a first-class dramatic association. Though some-

THE WESTERN PENITENTIARY.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18, 1871.

Editor Morning Herald:

The subject of penitentiaries and prison discipline, both in Europe and this country has been a matter of increasing public interest during the last twenty years. In 1848 George Coombs by his versatile and eloquent pen set a flood of light upon the causes of crime, the influence of which is apparent in the great improvements that have been made in the discipline of our prisons.

The inspectors of the Western State Penitentiary at Allegheny, in their last report to the Legislature, say they "Have just emerged from a transition state in the management of this institution. The recess from a rigid military system of discipline to the more liberal and enlightened and humane system, has been a tiresome and difficult one, especially where public opinion has been educated for a long series of years to the belief that the existing regime is infallible. Among the most prominent improvements introduced in this penitentiary, are a greater sociability of the prison population, the introduction of services to some worthy benevolent object, public singing, and the communication law, all of which have met with success.

I had occasion to visit the penitentiary a few days since, and through the kindness of the warden was permitted to examine the record books, and take from them such items as were of public interest.
